Meet the Author

Aug 10, 7 pm

Cheryl Bristow

Canadian author extraordinaire, a writer in a unique niche. No other novelist has written about the closing days of the Roman empire with such historical grace, romantic characters and suspenseful glimpses of history. Her Romeo and Juliette duo belong to enemy camps, violent antagonists fighting for the survival of their factions in the dying their factions in the dying days of the greatness that was Rome.

Read Cheryl Bristow's book. Ten 10 10 years of research, composed and consolidated into an engaging story, subtly told and intelligently developed. Bristow work is founded on extensive research and interaction with academia and learned scholars specializing in the period about which she has written.

This is a special opportunity of speaking with this Canadian author and supporting our domestic writers in a time print is being abandoned in favour of the antiseptic and unfeeling world of digital technology.

Support our Canadian writers by joining the meeting.
